STUDENT NURSES

63. Nurses are a sector that don't get enough praise for the great work that they do on a daily basis. I would like to thank nurses worldwide for the hard work that they put in to make peoples' lives that bit better.

64. Really looking forward to May the 10th to celebrate all the great work that nurses do all over the world

65. I think nurses are great!

During International Nurse Week the 8th of May is dedicated to Student Nurses

66. Thanks to all the nurses for their hard work looking after my family.

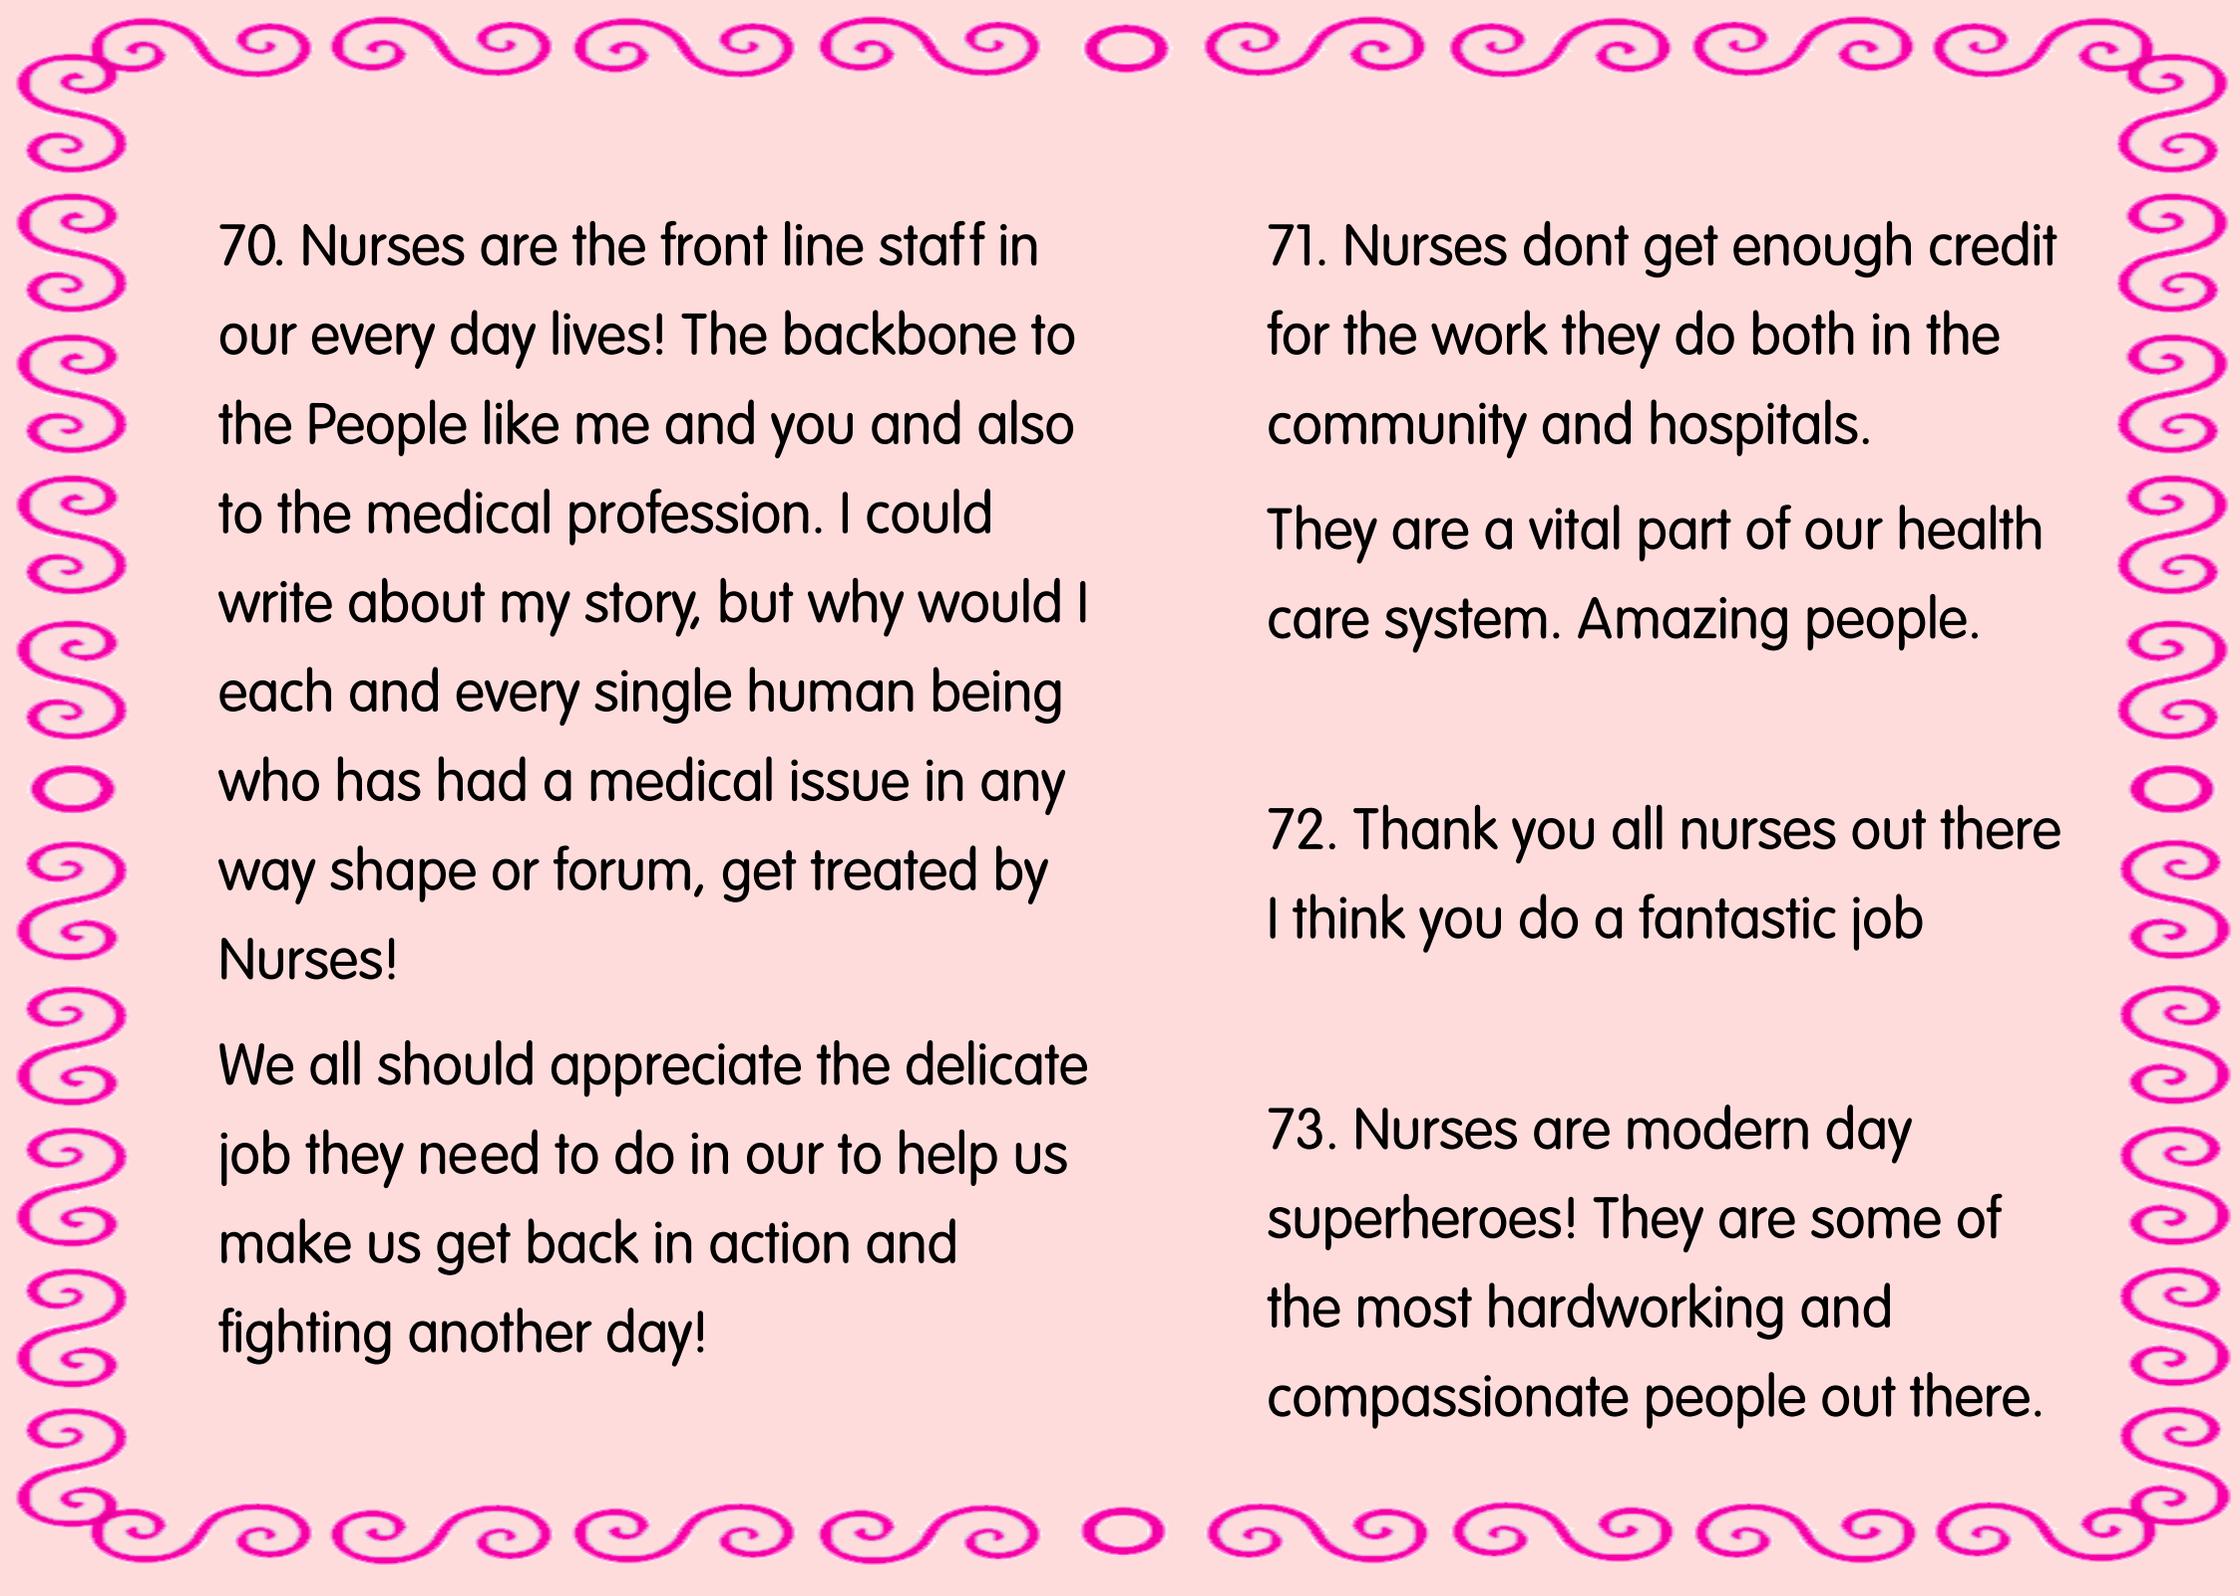

67. I would like to thank all the Nurses in Tallaght Hospital and the hospice in Harold's Cross. Where my Gran was cared for before she passed away. They have a very hard job to do. They really do not get enough thanks for all their work.

68. Thanks to all the nurses in St. James hospital for their kindness when looking after my nana. They were always so nice to her and my family.

69. Just like to say thanks to the nurses in Tallaght hospital for looking after my da when he was very

70. Nurses are the front line staff in our every day lives! The backbone to the People like me and you and also to the medical profession. I could write about my story, but why would I each and every single human being who has had a medical issue in any way shape or forum, get treated by Nurses!

We all should appreciate the delicate job they need to do in our to help us make us get back in action and fighting another day!

71. Nurses dont get enough credit for the work they do both in the community and hospitals.

They are a vital part of our health care system. Amazing people.

72. Thank you all nurses out there I think you do a fantastic job

73. Nurses are modern day superheroes! They are some of the most hardworking and compassionate people out there.

74. As someone who has some involvement in a Nursing Home, (mainly visiting the Residents), I have to take my hat off (congratulate), the Nursing Staff, who have to, not only care for many high maintenance Residents, but also have to spend considerable amounts of time on the computer (against their will), writing up all the information relating to the care given during the previous hours. One very dedicated nurse said Nursing has changed, and she wishes she could do more hands-on.

75. Made a mess of my hand once upon a time and had a complete Dk for a Doc, the situation wasn't bad enough like. Then a nurse come to bandage me up, was a total sympathetic ear, listened to me moan, we had a few laughs, told me what to do to get back on track. She picked me up and dusted me off. Fair play to her... A class act

76. Well done to all nurses everywhere. Keep the chin up in these challenging times
You make the difference to so many lives

77. #irishnurses are amazing,I have been in hospitals a lot lately and its #amazing how nice they are despite been so short staffed.

78. I am a kidney patient on in center dialysis and have fabulous nurses looking after me. Words cannot express my thanks and appreciation for all they do.

79. I would like to thank the wonderful nurses at a nursing home in Falcarragh, Donegal for looking after my Uncle Jim so well the past few months. As much as he did not want to be in the home, you made his stay as pleasant and comfortable as possible – thank you so much!

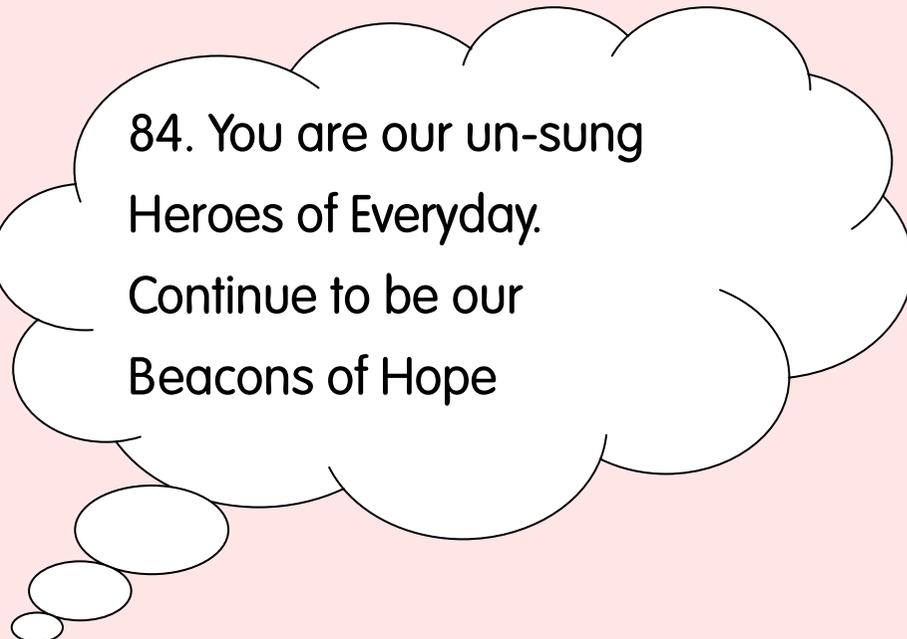

80. Our family were blessed with the nurses from Irish Cancer Society and from St. Francis Hospice Raheny in 2012. My wonderful Dad was diagnosed with terminal cancer and the love and support we received from all the nurses we met helped us through a very sad and difficult time. Nurses are the unsung heroes of our health system -they are the cog that keeps the wheel of our health system functioning. We are blessed to have such dedicated professionals in Ireland.

81. Thank to All Nurses

82. Thanks to Nurses Everywhere!!!!

'Being a Nurse isn't about grades, it's about being who we are. No book can teach you how to cry with a patient. No class can teach you how to tell their family that their parents have died or are dieing. No professor can teach you how to find dignity in giving someone a bed bath. A nurse is not about the pills and the charting It is about being able to love peole when they are at their weakest moments.'

87. Thank you to all the little kindnesses nurses have done for those close to me over the years – they are truly undervalued professionals in our society

88. To the nurses who looked after my dad during his time in James's hospital, particularly Olivia the clinical nurse for the stroke unit, words cannot express how grateful I am for your time, hard work, dedication and caring nature towards not only my dad but all of us during a really hard time. Taking the time to explain to us and answer our questions and put our worries to rest means more than you will ever know. Thank you so much x

89. Thank You for Everything!

90. When you are sick it makes a difference when you have a really friendly nurse who can make you feel better

91. If I tried I could not express how much the lovely ladies from the Oncology Dept in The Hermitage, Dublin have helped me this year. You are all amazing & I admire you all & value the time I spend with you. I can see how well informed, efficient, professional, warm, honest & giving you are. You are indeed, heroes.
